The 'talent' in today's Gospel was a huge sum of money. The numbers one, two and five can be misleading, as if the risk was not that great, but even one talent was more like a mortgage than petty cash. These servants were being asked to invest more money than they would see in a lifetime. Therefore, we might sympathize with the fear of losing a sum so large that it could never be paid back. But the point of the parable is that failure to invest is worse than risking the investment. Like many of Jesus' parables, the analogy is transparent. The master represents God, and the servants represent different types of responses to God. Specifically, in this parable, the three servants respond differently to the resources that their master (God) gave them. Notice that they are not all given the same resources. Presumably, they were given resources according to their ability, which means that we don't all get the same gifts from God, but we are given what is appropriate to our personalities and our individual vocations, or as St Paul said "different gifts, one Spirit" (1Corinthians 12:4) But God gives gifts to be used, not to be kept for ourselves. So (like the master in the parable) God would have us try and fail, and keep trying, rather than give up and "bury" our gifts. If we are sincerely trying to use our gifts, God is not disappointed with failure. That's because as long as we don't give up, failure is learning. Failure will be forgiven, but the refusal to use a gift is a refusal of the gift – which is also a rejection of God, the giver of the gift.

I am sure that we will all have breathed a huge sigh of relief this past week with the encouraging news about the development of what appears to be an effective vaccine for the coronavirus. Although there is still a considerable way to go, we can at least begin to look forward to 2021 with some hope in our hearts, as we see a bit of light at the end of this dark tunnel in which we have been living so much of our lives in 2020. Of course, we have to be realistic in recognising that life isn't going to simply go back to how it was in 2019 before we ever heard of COVID 19. We will be living with COVID 19 and its after effects upon our lives and our society for the foreseeable future. Still, we can rightly give thanks to God that, through the skill and hard work of so many scientists, we can look forward to brighter days. For now, of course, we must remain vigilant, especially during this second (and hopeful short) lockdown. With my SLT, I am continuing to plan and prepare for the celebration of Christmas Masses across our three parishes - should government regulations allow them to go ahead. As I have said before, we all need to begin to shape our expectations about what Christmas Mass will look and feel like this year. It will be very different as we will certainly be greatly restricted in what we can do due to all the measures we have to put in place to ensure that our churches are COVID-secure environments. Nevertheless, we will do all that we can to ensure that our celebrations are as joyful and special as the restrictions will allow.

Recently Deceased Parishioner: Mary Payne

Mary passed away Friday 25th October 2020 after she had briefly come to our Church for her confession. Arrangements for her funeral are being finalised & more information will follow. May she rest in peace.

The Zoom Liturgy classes are going well – every Sunday at 10am. It is lovely to see all the enthusiastic children and hear their lovely prayers. If you have not already joined and would like to go forward. Please email aofewoodman@outlook.com. Please, please, please we need volunteers to help run some sessions. No expertise required!
