Gospel Reflection

We heard last week the story of the good Samaritan, where the hero is the one who went out of his way to care for the stranger lying half dead on the road. Jesus had told this story to illustrate how we must love our neighbour. The Samaritan busies himself in bandaging up the stranger and finding him somewhere where he can stay and recover. It is an active response to need.

Immediately after this story, this week's Gospel takes us to the house of two sisters, Martha and Mary, whom Jesus is visiting. Mary sits down at Jesus' feet to listen while Martha is busy serving – presumably attending to Jesus' physical needs; water to wash his hands and something to eat and drink perhaps.

We might imagine Martha rushing around and frustrated to see her sister getting the privilege of a private talk from the Lord, whilst she is otherwise occupied.

Many a hospitality provider will have faced the same challenge; how often has a party come to its end and a family member has been so busy looking after the guests that they haven't had time to have a proper chat with anyone?

Poor Martha is so frustrated that she asks Jesus to tell her sister to give her a hand. But Jesus gently tells her that she is fretting and worrying about so many things and only one is needed: Mary is doing the right thing at the moment.

Jesus himself was constantly on the go – teaching, healing and moving from place to place. He did however at key points of his ministry take himself off alone to pray. His message to Martha and to us is that there are times to be busy, but we also have to create the space to listen to what the Lord has to say to us: to listen in prayer and to take time to reflect on God's word.

“ “Julian, you are wise” they say, “you have been gifted with understanding”. All I did was listen.”

(Mother Julian of Norwich).
