

TRANSIENT ART ACTIVITY WEEK 7

Images sourced from pinterest

Transient art is a non-permanent art form which is process orientated with no expectations... so no pressure.

What is also great is that you can use practically anything to create your picture. Here are some photos for you to get some ideas but it is up to you what you use.

If you have access to a garden you can use leaves, petals, pebbles, soil. If you look around your home you may have buttons, jewellery, shells, or beads.

If you have a photo frame that you could use it will give you a frame work to work with but if not you can create your picture straight on a table or on the ground.

There is no glue or paint involved so you can move things around as you please, come back to it the next day or clear it away when you have finished. No mess, no fuss, just go with the flow and enjoy!
