Palm Sunday

Luke 19:28-40

What's the point of going through Lent and the Stations of the Cross all over again when Jesus did that already? If we put ourselves through the Stations of the Cross meaningfully, we are able to put our feet in Christ's sandals so that we would also learn to love (even to death) all mankind; regardless of how often we are hurt in the process.

The Passion of Christ demonstrates how much we are loved and how far God will go to show love to us. Sometimes, I think Jesus may have wanted to change His mind while praying in Gethsemane, where he sought God in the midst of sorrow and distress. When everyone Jesus knew had either 'sold Him off,' denied Him, or run away for their own safety, it must have felt as though He had been abandoned by those he had thought loved Him so dearly. Even today, there are people all around us who feel abandoned and do not know where or who to turn to.

Today, as we ask Jesus where He would like to celebrate Passover, His response is: "I would like to celebrate Passover in your heart." Have you prepared your heart for the Passover feast? If we also ask Jesus, "who would you like to celebrate it with?" I am sure His response is: "the lonely, the broken, the anxious, the weary, the frightened, and the sick and with you." As we prepare our own hearts for the Passover feast, let us extend Jesus' invitation to those in need on His behalf.
