How are you feeling?

We spend more than half of each year suffering from colds, injuries or ailments. On average, we feel 100 percent fit only on 171 days a year. The rest of the time we are struggling with illness, tiredness, and hangovers.

That, according to a recent study for Tetley Tea, means that most people probably operate below par for more than six months of every year. We even feel 'run down' on two days of every working week. Better put the kettle on!

GET ON WITH IT !

You know the scenario - you are stuck in one checkout queue, which is crawling along, and meanwhile you are watching the other queue, which seems to be flying by.

According to David Andrews, an American researcher who has written extensively on the subject, it seems that the answer is that we experience time differently when waiting, as opposed to when we are engaged in a process. That means that if you have finally chosen the fastest queue at a checkout, you are too busy unloading your trolley to notice your blessing.
