+ 17TH SUNDAY – YEAR B

Gather up the fragments left over, that nothing may be lost.
(John 6.12)

In 2019 the 74th General Assembly of the United Nations designated September the 29th every year as the International Day of Awareness of Food Loss and Waste. For anyone wondering why the awareness is necessary, or why a day should be set aside worldwide for it, we note that annually food loss and waste accounts for a staggering one-third (the equivalent of 1.3 billion tons) of all food produced globally and occurs at the levels of food production, distribution, and consumption. At the level of production, much food is discarded for not meeting the standard and so considered unfit for the stall. During distribution, the food in the stall is removed and thrown away at the expiry of its best-before-date. Food throwaway at the level of consumption occurs as a result of households not eating all the food they buy. This is all happening when about 700 million people globally suffer severe hunger. Besides, the food that ends up in landfills due to the loss and waste is reckoned to generate about 8% of the emission of greenhouse gases that ominously account for global warming. Food loss and waste equally involves pointless waste of production, energy, capital, land, water, labour, and all that goes into food production. So, for there to be zero hunger and mitigated climate change, all need to be aware of food loss and waste and its impacts, and also of the importance of responsible and sustainable food production and consumption. If we all learn and begin to shop smarter, cook and eat smarter, and store smarter, there will be less food loss and waste, less climate change, and less hunger as more people will be fed.
