

Reflection Monday 2nd Week Easter 2023

The Holy Spirit becomes more evident in the lives of the apostles and disciples after the Resurrection of Jesus. Wind is the particular way in which the Spirit is shown to be present. Wind can be a gentle breeze as seen in Elijah's encounter with God, it can also be more dramatic as in today's reading. It will be present again on Pentecost day.

Wind is a useful image because its origin is not obvious, nor can its strength be strictly determined. Very much reflecting the way that God works. However, its reality and presence is felt and experienced. For those with resurrection eyes the reality of the presence of God can also be experienced and felt.

In the Assumptionist Rule of Life, we state that we believe in making a new conversion every day of our lives. We believe that each day presents us with a renewal of faith, a strengthening of our trust in Jesus, offers new spiritual insights, new possibilities to make the Good News of Jesus Christ real for the people we encounter and much more. We are born anew each day in Jesus Christ and it is the Spirit of God that enables us to respond with body, mind and soul.

What do wind turbines think of renewable energy?

They're big fans